WebData

Publisher Description

WebData is an Internet Database Portal, specializing in finding, categorizing and organizing online databases. WebData provides business and researchers a centralized location for searching and accessing Web databases. Webdata offers targeted access to information that text-based search engine sites do not. The WebData portal provides fast and concise access to Web data. WebData is different from search engines like InfoSeek, Yahoo!, Excite, Lycos, AltaVista and Netcenter available on the Internet. There are thousands of searchable databases on the net and many search engine portals, but finding Web databases using a typical search engine isn't easy. WebData solves this problem by collecting databases from the Internet into one place using its proprietary Agent3W spider and HTML parsing technology.
